

WEEK 1 OF 4 · Spirit

Script 1: Finding Your FlowTheme: Accessing Peak Performance

Rationale: This script connects the student to a past moment of peak performance — the felt sense of flow — and uses that memory as an anchor for the training session ahead.

Standard meditation stance setup. Offer the "out" for safety.

"We have worked on Breath, Body, and Mind. Now we look at the 'Spirit' — that feeling of 'flow' where movement happens without hesitation.

Settle in and close your eyes if you are comfortable doing so. Bring to mind a moment in your training where everything just clicked. Maybe it was a perfect throw, a kata performed without thinking, or a moment where you felt completely strong and capable. (Pause for 15 seconds.)

Try to remember how that felt in your chest and in your gut. That feeling of being totally present. This energy is always inside you, even on days when training is hard.

As you breathe in, imagine you are breathing in that focus and energy. As you breathe out, imagine sending that focus into your arms and legs. (Pause for 15 seconds.)

You are not just a body moving through space; you are moving with purpose. Sit with that feeling of strength and purpose for a few more breaths. (Pause for 20 seconds.) Carry this feeling with you as you stand up to train today."

(For a reset before an intense class:) "Wiggle your fingers and toes. Take a deep breath and clap your hands once together. Open your eyes."
